

Maryland's Low Income Energy Efficiency Programs

The Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's energy efficiency programs are designed to help low income Marylanders save money on utility bills; improving the comfort, health and safety of their homes, and repair or replace nonfunctioning heating systems by offering no cost energy efficiency upgrades.

Energy Efficiency Services

- Home energy analyst will visit your home to conduct a comprehensive whole house assessment of energy and health and safety related issues.* Using state of the art diagnostic equipment including blower door, carbon monoxide and heat system testing, and infrared scans, the auditor will develop a full-service energy-efficient retrofit scope of work to be implemented by an authorized program weatherization company.
- DHCD also offers evaluations and corrective services to address lead paint, mold, asbestos, roofing issues, and light rehab/structural issues.

Emergency No Heat Assistance

If you have a nonfunctioning heating system during the months of November through March, DHCD can help. The Emergency No Heat Assistance program can pay to have your heating system repaired or replaced.*

*Must meet income and other eligibility requirements. See chart on reverse side for income requirements.

In addition to the energy efficiency services, if you live in a BG&E Service territory (Except Baltimore City), are a home owner, and meet the income eligibility guidelines, you may qualify to receive additional services.
