Our Students Need More Attention!

A project or event that I will hold if I were mayor would be called "Our Students Need More Attention." It will be for students' parents on a day when children go to school. It would be held in the public library. I will call the best teacher in the city to come and explain to them the importance of their child's education.

It is important to me because students get lazy and don't want to learn. That will be difficult for them when they grow up because they need education to get a job. I would especially tell the parents who don't pay attention to their children.

I would spread the word by hanging up banners, give fliers from door to door, and etc. I would also post it in the newspapers. Another way could also be TV commercials. That is the event I would hold if I were mayor.

Other issues I would like to address as mayor are building shelters for foster children that don't have homes, stopping crime, building strong houses that don't get damaged in natural disasters, and creating more jobs for people. This is important to a city because without these resources, citizens wouldn't have proper safety.
